Uganda National Bureau of Standards continues to register success as one of the leading government agencies both in service delivery and non-tax revenue collection. In its annual year performance report for 2018/2019, the Bureau undertook Product Certification and Management Systems Certification to improve the quality of locally manufactured products so that more Ugandan goods are able to access regional and international markets. This has translated in increased growth.

Exports to the East African region grew by 51.8 percent from US$ 89.40 million in May 2016 to US$ 135.74 million in May 2017. Exports to Tanzania and Kenya registered the largest increases of 114.5 percent and 111.2 percent respectively.

With 95% of National Food Safety Laboratory construction complete UNBS will be proud to have one of the largest ultra modern National referral labs within the East African Region On top this UNBS beat off competition from other government agencies to win the e-government services Award organized by National Information Technology Authority (NITA) for Best Interactive Portal What a way to continue Celebrating 30 years of Service. Suffice to note that this wouldn't have been possible without the input of other stake holders. We would like to extend our gratitude to all our advertisers that continue to play a pivotal role of supporting the quality Chronicles. We are here because of you. THANK YOU. Enjoy the reading!

UNBS Registers Exponential Growth in SME Registration

More locally manufactured goods access export market

In its annual year performance report for 2018/2019, the Uganda National Bureau of Standards UNBS undertook Product Certification and Management Systems Certification to improve the quality of locally manufactured products so that more Ugandan goods are able to access regional and international markets. This saw an increased growth in product certification, more goods sold to the East African markets and 95% of laboratory construction complete. The Executive Director UNBS Dr. Ben Manyindo presents the report highlighting key sectors.

Product access to export market

The exports to the East African region grew by 51.8 percent from US$ 89.40 million in May 2016 to US$ 135.74 million in May 2017. Exports to Tanzania and Kenya registered the largest increases of 114.5 percent and 111.2 percent respectively. Most of these exports are manufactured products that require UNBS Distinctive Mark, and the need for manufacturers to invest in quality and certification of their products.

In 2018 a new regulation came into force on use of UNBS Distinctive Mark. It became mandatory for products covered by compulsory standards to be certified and issued with a distinctive mark before they are allowed on the market. As a result, we witnessed an exponential increase in the number of Micro, Small and Medium Scale Enterprises (MSMEs) seeking certification. We registered 1,339 MSMEs seeking certification. We also trained 847 and visited 619 MSMEs to build their capacity to apply standards and produce products that conform to standards thus contributing to the government’s export promotion strategy.

UNBS certified 1,350 products against a target of 3,000 permits. All certified products were able to access the wider EAC market. We issued 28 management systems certification permits against a target of 35.

The shortfall was due to failure by a number of MSMEs to pay fees for both testing and auditing despite registration; failure by MSMEs to address gaps in conformity to standards identified during certification audits; low technology base among MSMEs and; shortage of staff to handle the increased number of applicants and to assist MSMEs through the certification process.

Standards Development

UNBS developed 404 standards against a target of 400. Out of 404 standards, 212 are in the area of chemicals and consumer products, 62 under engineering, 96 under food and agriculture and 34 under management and services.

Standards for cosmetics were developed including shea butter, a product widely produced by SMEs in the country.

The Fisheries sector contributes 1.5% to the GDP of the country with export receipts in excess of USD 140 million. In order to promote sustainable fishing activities, a standard for a fishing gill net was elaborated.

Under textiles, standards for manufacture of school garments were developed. These standards also directly contribute to the implementation of the Buy Uganda Build Uganda (BUBU) Policy considering that most of the school clothing are manufactured locally.

Standards for farm tools and implements such as spades, hoes, wheelbarrows and machetes were reviewed. The standards contribute to improvement of quality of the tools on the market considering that these have been highlighted among the common substandard products in the market place.

Under furniture, standards for products such as dining tables, wooden wardrobes, steel filing cabinets, office chairs and composite office tables were developed.

Under the ICT sector, the standards for network security and information security management systems were developed. The standards provide mechanisms for establishment, implementation, maintenance and improvement of information security management systems.

Three (3) Standards for major staple foods such as maize, beans, wheat, sorghum and millet were revised and updated to ensure quality and safe commodities are available for consumption thus contributing to improvement of the food security Uganda and livelihoods of the rural communities considering that generally food crops contribute 12.8% of GDP annually.

The standard for green coffee beans was also developed to contribute to the Government's effort of increasing coffee production from 4 million to 20 million 60 Kg bags of coffee by 2020. In 2017/18, Uganda exported coffee worth USD 555 million, accounting for 20% of all the formal exports.

Laboratory Product Testing

UNBS tested 17,770 product samples against a target of 15,000.

These included chemicals, food items, electrical items, materials & engineering items, to ensure that both locally manufactured and imported items conform to Uganda Standards.

The e-certificates were successfully implemented under Laboratory Information Management System (LIMS) to improve on turnaround time. Analytical Laboratories test result response time has generally improved from an average of 30 days in the last financial year to 20 upon submission of a product sample for testing.

UNBS has put in place a laboratory recognition scheme where over 15 public and private laboratories can be contracted to test samples on behalf of UNBS.

Analysis of veterinary drug residues was consolidated with support from the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) project to safeguard consumption of animal products such as meat, milk, eggs and others.

The Chemistry laboratory was assessed for its potential to be a Centre of Excellence on the African Continent for testing heavy metal contaminants in foods.

Product quality

UNBS undertook a number of activities in enforcing standards to ensure that there are quality products on the market and to protect the health and safety of consumers. UNBS still has challenges in the prevalence of the substandard goods on the market especially from informal businesses.

Imports Inspection

Under imports inspection and clearance regulation 2018, all goods covered by compulsory standards must be inspected in the country of origin for compliance with Uganda Standards before they are imported into the country PVOC.

447 consignments that did not meet standards estimated at Shs29.1

billion (USD 7,856,604) were denied entry into Uganda thus protecting more than 5 million consumers from consuming substandard products. 428 motor vehicles worth Shs650 million that did not meet standards were denied entry into the Ugandan market. Therefore, consumers were saved from spending Shs650 million on motor vehicles that did not meet standards. 222 tonnes of a variety of substandard products worth shs992 million seized at the point of importation were destroyed. These included food and food products, chemicals and consumable products, assorted electronics, mattresses and assorted textiles.

The Import Inspectors were deployed to 20 additional entry border points and customs inland container depots which resulted in inspection of additional 8,600 consignments per annum. This resulted in the protection of about 900,000 consumers from potentially harmful and substandard products.

Market Surveillance

6,646 inspections were undertaken against the annual target of 5,000 inspections. This included interception of trucks distributing uncertified products which contributed to 58% of the total inspections.

413 tonnes of substandard items worth Sh66.4 billion were seized from supermarkets, retail shops, distribution outlets, manufacturing premises, hardware shops, and Internal Container Depots (ICDs), and distribution trucks.

Weights and Measures

UNBS inspects weighing equipment used in trade for accuracy to protect both the buyer and the seller in a commercial transaction thereby promoting fair trade. Accurate instruments are issued with a UNBS Sticker as evidence that the accuracy of the instrument has been verified.

UNBS SET TO OPEN ULTRA MODERN FOOD SAFETY LABORATORIES

TO BE OPENED IN OCTOBER

Deus Mubangizi
UNBS Manager Laboratory Testing

The laboratory testing team at UNBS will be entering their new state-of-the-art laboratories in Bweyogerere Industrial Park, in October this year. Mr. Deus Mubangizi, the Manager Laboratory Testing gives us an update on the progress of the Food Safety Laboratories at the UNBS Headquarters.

Uganda is set to get its first National Referral Laboratories for food products, following the completion of UNBS Food Safety Laboratories. The construction which started in 2018, will end in October this year when the Nakawa based team moves into their new home.

Mubangizi applauds government's support towards the construction referral lab is key in training and also prompting other labs,” he explains. “These new labs are spacious compared to what we have in Nakawa, and there is provision for new equipment to be brought in. And it reduces on the turnaround time for samples to get tested.”

He adds that there will also be ordinary testing for products which UNBS regulates. And for areas where other labs do not have capacity, they will still bring in samples for analysis.

“Government at the moment is working on a law to setup an Accreditation Body that will be under the Ministry of Trade, industry and Cooperatives but semi-autonomous. Its work will mainly be to assess and accredit laboratories in Uganda. Currently UNBS is accredited but we had to get it from South Africa. However now we are saying Uganda needs to have its own national accreditation body just like how it’s done in Europe and South Africa.”

Electronic system

The pioneer of e-services was the Laboratory Information Management Systems (LIMS). With LIMS, once a sample is received it is put in our system which allows faster release of results than the manual system. The only part we can’t automate is at the point of receiving the sample, because there you have to check that the sample is physical, the integrity, the adequacy and the proper packaging. Then it is entered into the system. All the approvals, and assessments are done online. And this has helped us cut back turnaround time by 40%. It used to take us 30 days to get results, but now it takes less than 20 days. But our target is 15 days once we add new equipment and stuff at the new premises. The minimum we can push the results would be 7 days. So it depends there samples which take one or two days and those which take 28 days like cement.

UNBS laboratory collection Centre Unit under construction

At the beginning of this year 2019, we introduced the e-certificates to automate even the final product. So now when we do the testing your certificate will come out and you will receive it on your email.

So the plans we have is that , industries and other stakeholders are not delayed when they bring samples, then we are able to promote and facilitate trade. Because you see when you bring a sample from Busia and Malaba and it takes one month then really you are not facilitating trade but if you bring it and within a week or two weeks you have results out then business is good.

Collection centres

UNBS has regional offices in Mbale, Mbarara, and Gulu where local manufacturers can drop their products, or you can bring samples directly at UNBS headquarters.

He says; “We plan on setting up laboratories in Mbale, Mbarara and Gulu so that clients will also be able to test some samples at our regional laboratories.. It is only samples which cannot be tested at those labs will be brought here in Kampala. For instance if you have samples of milk and yoghurt, our clients will be able to test them in western Uganda., . It’s only heavy samples like iron sheets, cement and the like which will require testing at our head offices. ”

About the nuclear based testing equipment

“We use nuclear technology to test for veterinary drug residues. People are consuming meat products but Uganda didn’t have in place the necessary safeguards. In Uganda, you find that the medicine that is used to treat animals is similar to what treats human beings. So if they slaughter a cow which was previously treated with Ampicillin and you eat it, you develop drug resistance and the moment you get sick and you are treated with Ampicillin, you won’t get cured. The good news is that UNBS can detect this, we have a machine called Liquid Chromatograph Mass Spectrometer (LCMSMS), it is used for testing pesticide residues and also veterinary drug residues. So that you don’t consume excess veterinary drug residues in the meat,” Mubangizi said.

delivery. In the past two (2) years, UNBS has been able to automate most of its services including the development of the UNBS APP. Other platforms include the e-portal for imports inspection, LIMS for laboratory, CIMS for certification, SIMS for standards and webstore for procurement of standards on-line.

E-MINZANI is in the process of being piloted and tested before roll out this year.

In addition to the e-platforms, UNBS continues to decentralise its services so as to bring services closer to Ugandans. As a result the market surveillance and product certification functions were decentralised to Gulu, Mbale and Mbarara. We hope that the laboratory testing will follow this financial year.

Efforts are underway for increased engagement and collaboration with Local Governments and partners to reduce substandard goods on the market while empowering MSMEs to export to regional and international markets.

The total approved budget for FY 2018/19 was UGX 47.8 billion of which UGX 26.5 billion was from Non Tax Revenue. 94.8% of the budget was released of which UGX 6 billion was allocated to the construction of the Food safety laboratories. The labs are 95% complete and are expected to be commissioned later this year.

UNBS UPGRADES CALIBRATION RIG TO STATE OF THE ART

FUEL TANKERS SERVED FASTER

Today, fuel tankers do not have to line up all year round to be calibrated, Thanks to improvements done on the UNBS Rig in Bweyogerere. Mr. Boniface Kapere is the in charge Bulk Measures at UNBS he breaks down how this new process improves service provision and supports fair trade.

“The upgrading done on the Rig was aimed at improving our turnaround time. It is one in the country and is where we do verification of all the road fuel tankers, for those that are importing and those that are distributing fuel in the country. This development has cut on the backlog given that we have tankers lined up all the time year round,” says Kapere.

UNBS used to work on four fuel tankers

Mr. Boniface Kapere
In charge Bulk Measures at UNBS

“We are in control 100%, am not saying that we do not have control over the other private rigs, just that we have to do more validation of the results from those rigs to check whether they are in line with what UNBS expects. And of course, these rigs have to get regular checks from UNBS to see that their equipment are calibrated to have quality checks. So unlike at UNBS where they do the calibration immediately, elsewhere you will have to wait for a UNBS inspector to arrive at that rig to do calibration which may cause delays.” He says.

in 24 hours but today this number has grown to eight (8). He says the Rig two bays, though a few things that are still being worked on however once they are in place a client will see both the bays outputting simultaneously.

Calibration of tankers

“At the moment we are talking about a process which has been ongoing for some time. tankers that have already had prior verification are monitored.. And when that verification is about to expire, the trucks come back here to be re-verified. In the event that a truck has been calibrated before crossing over into Uganda, or is coming here for the first time – then we monitor it at its point of entry at the border. UNBS has its legal metrologists stationed at the border points, who will always look at the quantity certification on the incoming fuel tankers. Any tanker that does not have the certificate of verification is forwarded to Bweyogerere for verification.” – Kapere.

He adds: “the moment he gets here it means that all the subsequent deliveries will be based on a known quantification, because these results would be derived from Bweyogerere. Therefore there is traceability of measurement”. “what is critical at this moment is that we have a facility where results can be got and sent through our system called the e-truck. - we want to find ways of getting the trading partners to have access onto our information database so that at any one moment you can go back and say we offloaded from this truck which was not verified but now UNBS has already done verification, so we can look at what UNBS got as the quantities visa vie what we used before the verification.”

tankers and ensure accuracy in measurement of bulk meters.

So the challenge really is in the dissemination of our information back to the other locations.

The UNBS service Rig is the first of its kind in Uganda, and the only one here. Though there are other rigs which are not similar to the one in Bweyogerere.

Kapere explains that the main difference between the other private rigs and the one at UNBS is that, UNBS has full control of its rig in Bweyogerere.

“We are in control 100%, am not saying that we do not have control over the other private rigs, just that we have to do more validation of the results from those rigs to check whether they are in line with what UNBS expects. And of course, these rigs have to get regular checks from UNBS to see that their equipment are calibrated to have quality checks. So unlike at UNBS where they do the calibration immediately, elsewhere you will have to wait for a UNBS inspector to arrive at that rig to do calibration which may cause delays.” He says.

Earlier this year in August, UNBS launched its automated services and among these services was the e-rig. According to UNBS, the e-rig is a management information system which is used for verification of fuel tankers. The system is said to be faster and convenient than the traditional method of recording information.

“Before you had to call an inspector who records the information in a book, then computes it manually from which results would be generated at a later time. But now we have an information system where you can input the data through a hand held equipment (which will come in October this year). The inspector will be able to input the information right from the verification rig and later a certificate can be produced in a short time.” He explains.

Consequently, he adds that the system has been made in such a way that it recognises the legally permitted tolerances called the maximum permissible errors. It computes and gives you a report where all the data has been derived. It will then give you a pass and UNBS can subsequently issue a certificate.

Scheduling/Time tables

“A few people especially those with large fleets do schedule in. UNBS has a list of their trucks and know when their verification expires. And so we maintain that engagement and say ok these tankers need to come for verification at this time. Besides this, most of the trucks we get are drive-ins. When it comes to charges, it depends on the capacity. The weights and measures fees are based on the statutory instrument which is SI 34 of 2017 which provides for Ugx 8,000 for every 500 litres plus a stamping fee of Ugx 4,000. So when you compute that, a truck of 40,000 litres will be paying Ugx 644,000 once in a year. And if something is to happen to the truck, say an accident the person has to come back.” He explains.

The construction of the rig has been funded by government and after the period of defect liability, UNBS will have a team that is capable of maintaining the Rig, ensuring that it is working at its best.

When asked about UNBS’ pending role in Uganda’s oil exploration, Kapere said UNBS at the moment is focusing on pattern approval, and that the types of equipment which are coming should be acceptable by Ugandan standards.

He says; “UNBS has some expertise and is continuously building capacity. Staff have been trained in specialized metrology fields for the Oil and Gas. This year alone we have had two people trained in measurement control and uncertainty quantification for oil and gas custody transfer. And more will be trained with time.”

MARKET SURVEILLANCE: BUREAU CRACKS WHIP ALCOHOL & POLYTHENE BAG MANUFACTURERS

Daniel Arorwa

Manager Market Surveillance UNBS

Merchandise seized and offenders prosecuted as UNBS shows strength against sale and distribution of 100ml sachet alcohol. Mr. Daniel Arorwa, the Manager Market Surveillance UNBS gives an update.

Following the directive of 1st March 2019, where the Honourable Minister of Trade in her Ministerial statement issued a ban on packaging, distribution and sell of alcohol in sachet, UNBS effectively took up the enforcement. She sighted the Cabinet directive of 2017 with effect from 31st March 2019, the packaging of all alcoholic drinks must be done in plastic and glass bottles 200ml minimum. And then the purchase of sachet alcohol is banned with effect from 30th May 2019.

“The first thing UNBS did on the 30th May 2019, was to visit all the known factories that package alcohol in these sachets and sealed their machines. And since most of these companies were certified we made it a precondition that they renew their permits.” Says Arorwa.

The Market Surveillance team has combined efforts with other regulatory agencies like the Police, Kampala Capital City Authority and Uganda Revenue Authority to smoke out unscrupulous businesses. In addition, the Bureau is closely working with URA to prevent the importation of sachet alcohol of volumes of less than 100ml.

“At district level, we are working with local leaders like the Resident District Commissioners, Chief Administrative officer, District Security Officer and Police to ensure that there is no continued distribution of the sachets to their districts. Besides this, UNBS is also doing door to door inspections in shops and stores. And have found a lot of stock that we have had to remove and destroy. This includes sealing off certain factories that were found not to be compliant.” He says.

“We are energized to scout the market to remove polythene bags, of-course with the help of KCCA, the Police and other agencies. We need these agencies because as you know UNBS still have a lower capacity to fully enforce, but when we put our hands together with these agencies it is easier.” – Arorwa.

Single use polythene bags are the biggest environmental poluters affecting Sub-Saharan Countries it has just began this enforcement. It started with manufacturers in that when the team reaches the sellers, they (the sellers) will be having less product and making it easier to remove the banned polythene bags completely. He however says that a challenge of not knowing the location of some of the manufacturers is ever present. This is why UNBS wants to work hand in hand with the public.

The NEMA environmental Act of 2019 section 76 pushes the role of enforcing on the manufacturer and distribution, sale of plastic bags to UNBS.

He now wants priority to be on increasing the capacity of the Market Surveillance to about 250 from the current 25 personnel.

Arorwa says, the misconception some Ugandans have is that it is solely government to regulate substandard goods.

“In truth, it’s a concerted effort we must all play a role in this effort to get quality products and services. It is a call upon everyone to fight substandard products, because you see if a consumer shuns a substandard product, then it won’t be put on sale, and if a Policeman finds a substandard product being conveyed and he holds it and calls UNBS then the culprits will be scared.”

Grain affected by mould that produce aflotoxins

Mr. David Eboku
UNBS Standards Manager

GRAIN STANDARDS TO MITIGATE ON KILLER INVISIBLE POISON

AFLATOXINS IN GRAIN PRODUCE CAUSES CANCER

Aflatoxins are poisonous and cancer-causing byproducts from moulds that can lead to liver failure and stunting in children and animals. The UNBS Standards Manager Mr. David Eboku shades light on the scale to which these microorganisms can be managed especially with the new maize standards.

Eboku explains that Aflatoxins are in the category of mycotoxins which makes them hard to detect or feel, and because signs of distress show when it's too late for the person, the toxins are fatal.

They are produced by moulds which are a sub group of fungi. It is these moulds which excrete Aflatoxins as waste during their own metabolism.

"These Aflatoxins poison your body causing cancer if they accumulate with time, specifically liver cancer. Secondly, they can affect the normal growth of children leading to stunting. And when taken in very large quantities, for example when you are eating food that has high levels of Aflatoxins, you will get an immediate shutdown of the liver, killing you instantly." He says.

He adds that Aflatoxins have been associated with death, in communities that take grains (beans, maize, and groundnuts among others). A case in point is neighbouring Kenya, the impact of Aflatoxins has been huge because they are accustomed to preparing a traditional dish where the maize grain is mixed with beans, boiled and eaten. Later people became sick and hospitals started filling up, an investigation was done and it was found that the food they had been eating had high concentrations of Aflatoxins.

Other crops that are susceptible to Aflatoxins are groundnuts (peanuts), sorghum and chia seeds. UNBS says that as long as the grain has starch and oil, then it’s vulnerable to contamination because it is food for the mould. As the mould grows it eats the grain and the poison is excreted as a by-product from the fungi.

He says the issue of Aflatoxins is being discussed today because it affects trade especially exports.

“As you know trade is going up and Uganda needs to sell its produce to Europe and other emerging markets. To do so, Uganda has to deal with this issue of Aflatoxins because those trade destinations especially Europe, have stringent regulations. So now that Uganda knows what the markets want, we started doing studies to improve Uganda’s produce and meet trade regulations of these lucrative markets abroad.”

But because Uganda’s climate is warm and moist, it is a suitable habitat for moulds.

It’s not easy to dry crops here since average humidity goes as high as 80% most of the year with temperatures go as high as 30 degrees centigrade. At this rate almost any grain you grow will get contaminated. Eboku explains that our food handling processes have hardly improved in the last 50 years.

“Some people still dry the grain on bare ground where livestock move around. The ground is where the mould thrives. Most places in Uganda where maize is grown do not have any proper storage, even placing it in the house on the floor is still not good practice because the grain gets contaminated. The poorer the handling, the worse the contamination will get.”

However, Eboku says some Ugandans are protected because they eat processed white flour, which is pure starch and not the whole grain brand (brown coloured flour).

For other grains like ground nuts, people have defied nature’s way of preserving these nuts (keeping them in pods). When you crack them open, you expose the nuts to moisture and then the mould starts feeding on them. This situation is made worse when water is poured on the shells before placing them in a cracking machine to remove the shells.

“For food safety, what UNBS does when it gets a product for testing, it checks that the product is not contaminated above acceptable levels for consumption. What should worry you is that, the impact of Aflatoxins is accumulative, the longer you keep taking in the toxins the faster your liver will fail.”

Eboku wants the public to know that there is a mandatory standard that limits the level of Aflatoxins in all grains, be it maize, groundnuts, sorghum, or Chia seeds. The level set is 10 micrograms per kilogram.

He adds that apart from knowing what the problem is, people should know what they should do to avoid the problem. Emphasizing the importance to teach people about food safety, learning from other countries where food safety is an independent agency handling food matters.

Most farmers in Uganda are peasants, who store their produce in traditional ways. Most grow crops for food and the excess is sold. So, most of the time a poor farmer is fighting the weather. When there is enough rainfall, they will have better harvests. But the same rain makes it difficult to dry produce. By continuously doing this, we do not control our harvests. The same way we can’t control how big a harvest we will get is the same way we cannot control the quality of the harvest, if we still depend on nature to yield big.

UNBS estimates that almost 90% of traders dealing in grain do not understand what is meant by Aflatoxins. Worse still the capacity to change this situation is still very limited. Eboku wants the issue of Aflatoxins to be talked about every day because consumers are being born every minute.

Standards on Silos.

UNBS has standards for silos, whether you want to store in tonnes or kilograms. The standards describe how to arrange produce in the store, how the aeration should be, what kind of product I should put in the store. All these guidelines show you how the store should be constructed and maintained, how to prevent infestation of vermin and much more.

“Given the peasant way of storing produce in pots and sacks, we would encourage government to put warehouses in every parish and encourage people to put their produce there. With a person maintaining the store making sure ...to avoid being poisoned avoid Aflatoxins being in your food completely, otherwise when they are there, there is no way to remove them...

David Eboku, Manager Standards UNBS.

Well stored and healthy grain.

that whatever is put in there isn't spoilt. In a formal system you are supposed to even have a drying machine (moisture extractor) for the produce. So in terms of standardization this is what we do to ensure that we are guided in that area. So we want the people concerned with produce to invest in modern storage facilities. You can find a person who has been trading in maize for 10 years but when they haven't constructed storage yet. They still want to just buy and sell." – Eboku.

He cautions that the only way to avoid being poisoned is to avoid Aflatoxins being in your food completely, otherwise when they are there, there is no way to remove them. "Unlike in the laboratories where chemicals are used to boil them out, now for you who is at home in the village will you have the means to do this as well? Even if you boiled it at 100 degrees, these temperatures can't destroy it.

What you can do

What you can do is always sort your grains and remove those that are contaminated. Any grains that are dark or stained are likely to be contaminated. Unfortunately, the poor farmer will sort the good ones and sell them and then eat the bad ones as sauce." It is also important to dry produce on permanent ground such as concrete floor or use tarpaulins and to store in dry place. Avoid keeping broken grains for long as these absorb moisture more readily and allow the moulds to grow.

The Aflatoxins can also be transferred to animals. When you feed your chicken on maize brand that has Aflatoxins, and then you eat the chicken you will still get poisoned, and stunted – the chicken get stunted and your children also get stunted. To a commercial farmer this affects your yields, a chicken which is supposed to be 100 kilos will be 60 kilos. According to Eboku, whatever is contaminated should be destroyed, burnt because when you throw it in your garden it becomes worse.

In Uganda, the earliest record of a fatal case was in the 1960's, a boy was hospitalized because he had been poisoned by the cassava he had eaten.

UNBS SCOOPS “e” GOVERNMENT SERVICES AWARDS 2019

AWARDED BY NITA FOR BEST INTERACTIVE PORTAL AND USER FRIENDLINESS

The Uganda National Bureau of Standards, this year beat off competition from other government agencies to win the e-government services Award organized by National Information Technology Authority (NITA) for Best Interactive Portal. The UNBS Deputy Executive Director in charge of Management Services, Mr. David Ebiru shares with the Q.C what the award means to the Bureau.

What does this Award mean to UNBS?

It is important to note that UNBS is among the top government agencies taking a lead in embracing e-government solutions. As you are aware Government now has a policy for automation where all its Ministries, Agencies and Departments (MDAs) have to embrace the use of Information technology to deliver services faster and easily to the citizens. As a Standards Body, we are fully onboard with this since we are minimizing delays between UNBS as the service provider and other stakeholders who are the end users.

Our stakeholders and clients are able to access UNBS services therefore expected to have presence all over the country. This can only be possible through automation of client demanded services to bring them closer wherever they are demanded.

Just imagine how you can now be able to apply for certification online and get your certification permit and laboratory test results online. For the Clearing Agents, you can now lodge your application for imports clearance online and obtain UNBS release online from wherever you are.

What criteria did NITA use to find you worthy of this Award?

One of the benchmarks looked at was accessibility. How easy is it to access the portal? The other is user friendliness, how easy is it to use the application? And of course the cost implication, is it cost effective or free to access? All these questions were answered by the UNBS portal.

Then there is availability, we are saying that this service is available 24/7 from Monday to Sunday.

What we want now is to get feedback from the people who visit the UNBS website, to know how good the services on this portal are. The experts have spoken, saying that our web portal is the most interactive among government agencies, now we want to get the same feedback from the users.

Does this Award reflect your performance in 2018/2019 financial year?

Our performance keeps improving every year as a result of continuous automation of UNBS services. The use of ICT solutions in all our core operations

QC makes it easier for us to serve and reach more people. This Award, is indeed a testament to our commitment to continuous improvement in service delivery.

In addition, UNBS sets physical targets for each function against which they are assessed at the end of each year. This also applies to mobilization of non- tax revenue from services offered which we now collect online and remit directly to the Consolidated Fund.

Best performing Functions in the last twelve months.

Annual Performance depend on the services offered by each department. We have seen higher performance for regulatory services compared to promotional services.

QC Otherwise we have witnessed more or less a balanced

DE performance between the two categories of services during the year.

We have a number of e-services deployed across the various functions that have positively impacted on their performance.

- The Laboratory Management System (LIMS)
- The Certification Management System
- E-Portal Imports Clearance System
- Standards Information Management System
- E-Rig for Verification of Road Tankers and other Bulk Measures

- E-Mizani for Weights and Measures
